Cover Notes; Ancient Greek boxing dates back to the eighth century when it was considered an important part of Greek athletic culture. There are numerous legends related to the birth of boxing as a sport in ancient Greece. The earliest legend holds that the heroic ruler Theseus invented boxing. In his version of the sport, two men sat facing each other and beat each other to death with their fists. As time passed, the sitting positions changed into standing, and the boxers started to wear gloves with spikes. They fought completely naked. Another legend is told through the work of Homer. In his Iliad, Mycenaean warriors included boxing as a way of honoring the fallen. Boxing was listed among the contests that were held in memory of Achilles who died in the Trojan War.

A Note from Your Chronicler

Things are beginning to open up and we have actually had our very first in person event in like...forever. Look for upcoming practice on our Facebook page or by email. July changes more rules about events and though Pennsic 49 was canceled (again) we will all be looking forward to attending in 2022.

So watch the kingdom calendar and the newsletter calendar for upcoming events and I look forward to seeing everyone real soon.

the barony of bright hills

We send greetings to the populace; high summer is here, and the Kingdom and society are changing the rules for events. Please make sure you read our new requirements for events and practices during the reopening phases.

On Saturday the 26 of June, Bright Hills hosted the first in person event in many a month. We feel that it was a success and thank all those that allowed us to put this together in short notice. We celebrated the coronation of King Eckehard and Queen Jane the new monarchs of Atlantia. The event had A&S displays, heavy fighting, and archery. Thank you all that were able to attend, the fellowship was wonderful, and we look forward to future events.

Future events. Bright Hills will host our monthly Virtual Bardic on July 10th at 7pm. We plan to attend Stierbach's Baronial Birthday on August 7th. Lady Dagny Austkona is our head retainer and will be coordinating volunteers to keep us out of harm's way and help us during events. We look forward to seeing the populace in the coming days, join us and let us celebrate life and create memories as the society and Kingdom continue to reopen after the pandemic.

We would urge all to look for ways to support the Barony; there are a few Officer and deputy positions that need filling. If you are interested, please speak with the Seneschal, Lady Freydis.

Our next event baronial event is Trial by Fire/Royal Archery on 2 October, which will be a Royal Progress, we ask that if you know of a deserving individual that need recognition for their good works let us know. Also, if there are individuals that are deserving of Kingdom awards, please let us know so we can add our support.

As we open slowly, remember that others are still facing high stress levels. Be kind to each other, check on you friends and neighbors and always remember, "Only the Best from Bright Hills."

Yours in Service,

GODAI KATSUNAGA AND WANDA THE WANDERER

Baron and Baroness of Bright Hills

Camping will be allowed , but food, drinks, and feasts are not allowed. Still must be pre-packaged. Can have a 5-gallon water jug due to heat, suggest we continue to use bottled water at this time. Can bring in a food truck or professional caterer. No masks after July 1st.

Royal Archery and Trial by Fire:

July first we can camp so we can go October 1st to 3rd. We are working on a specific list on how to have the cooks present, the food, to the judges, and if we need to we might have to have a waiver and corporate is not offering waivers. We will just have to see where we are in October. Their majesties will be in attendance. At the last meeting their Excellencies asked us to offer hospitalities.

Birthday

We are now in the second half of this year so we need to think about Birthday and get it spiked.

Old Business

Demo at Royal Rabbit we are still required to follow SCA restrictions. Looks like we can follow state and area regulations. Roy Albin from Royal Rabbit says we have a bureau and we have four or five vendors at this point. Can also look for semi or professional performers. It has been a very laid back event. People are really picking up on these outdoor events. There is room for quite a few vendors. Vera will be the liaison for this event. They would like to know the size of tent we are bringing Kollack says we can provide a 20x30 tent and will work with you if we bring a list fence. Vera wants to stick to a schedule as to what time each demo will be at. Date August 28, 2021. People who participate Royal Rabbit will provide bottles of wine and a dinner afterwards. There will be a set-up on Friday afternoon for those who can help.

Devon says we could have some A&S demos

Age old question about working with the church. as they want to charge us both inside and outside space. They want us out. For heavy practice we could use Baltimore Bowman and there is tons of room. In the wintertime the clubhouse has a blast furnace.

It is suggest that we keep the Business meeting online as it saves people driving time and money for the barony.

Throwing out idea to have fighter practice on another day/night than Friday. A&S doesn't have to be at the same time as fighter practice.

New Business

No new business.

Next meeting will be July 16, 2021 at 7:00 PM.

Meeting ended at 7:58 PM

Any corrections or additions to these minutes should be sent to the Chronicler at brighthill.chronicler@gmail.com

My Translation:

Salad

Take parsley, sage, garlic, chives, onions, leek, borage, mint, scallion, fennel and nasturtium, rue, rosemary, purslane, rinse and wash them clean pick them pluck them small with thine hand and mingle them well with raw oil lay on vinegar and salt and serve them forth.

My Interpretation:

1 pound spring mix
1 package chives
1 package mixed fresh herbs
*(parsley, sage, and rosemary) 1 leek (greens)
1 fennel (greens)
1 package fresh mint
1 package edible flowers *if available
1 scallion

1 small onion or shallots
1 Tbsp. olive oil
1 Tbsp. vinegar
½ tsp. kosher salt

Rinse and pat dry spring mix and herbs. Pick tender greens from herbs (discard woody stems and pieces) and add to spring mix. Thinly slice greens of leek, fennel, scallion, onion, and scallion and add to spring mix. Gently toss greens with olive oil and salt. Just before serving, dress with vinegar.

Notes on the Recipe:

This recipe specifies a number of potherbs and aromatics that were common in gardens in England during the 14th century, the ingredients I listed are easily available in most American grocery stores today.

Unlike modern salads where the dressing of olive oil and vinegar is mixed before placing on the greens, the greens in this recipe are tossed with the olive oil first. I have found that this technique allows the greens to stay crisper longer as the olive oil provides a barrier against the vinegar, which increases the amount of time significantly that it takes for the vinegar to wilt the greens.

Notes on the Transcription ~ Translation:

The original text and transcription preserve the shorthand of writing that was common practice in the late 14th century. I have taken the liberty of spelling each word fully in my transcription for clarity.

The following words I chose to define based on information in both the Middle-English Dictionary and a Modern Dictionary:

chybollus - chibolle - small onion - chives
porrettes - sort of leek - scallion towne cressis - town cresse - nasturtium
auen - wash; pour out a stream - rinse

Cheese Glue

by Mistress Alexandra Hartshorne, OL
Participants: Alex, Georgia, Fiona, Clare

Items: Milk as two forms of cheese and milk

ORIGINAL Recipe

Cennini - To Make a Glue out of Lime and Cheese.

Chapter CXII

Ends the Fifth Section of this Book

There is a glue used by workers in wood; this is made of cheese. After putting it to soak in water, work it over with a little quicklime, using a little board with both hands. Put it between the boards; it joins them and fastens them together well. And let this suffice you for the making of various kinds of glue.

Redaction

Firstly this recipe does not specify the type of cheese to use, soft, semi-soft or hard. So this needs to be attempted with all types of the cheese to test for the most appropriate type.

Attempts using different quantities of water (ie thick/thin mixtures) will be needed as well.

Ingredients

Cheese, quicklime, water, milk.

Method

1. Soak cheese in water (until soft?)
2. Mix quicklime (be careful as this will release heat) using boards (not your hands)
3. Mix in a little milk if it is too thick.
4. Put mixture between boards to set.

Our Process

Cheese

One attempt at making an Asiago cheese has failed. I will use the good parts of the cheese as the hard cheese attempt for this recipe.

I have also made some quark, which is a soft cheese. I will use this as the soft cheese attempt.

As I am unable to make semi-soft cheeses (I have no way to control humidity accurately enough) I will buy some cheap camembert or brie for the semi-soft attempt. [We never got to this part!!]

Making Quicklime: Lime can come from limestone or from sea shells.

Method: Heat the lime to red hot for a minimum of 3 minutes.

Our Process:

Attempt 1: We attempted to make quicklime, using limestone from a paver.

We had two different types of limestone paver, a light coloured one called 'natural' and a darker coloured one called 'honey limestone'.

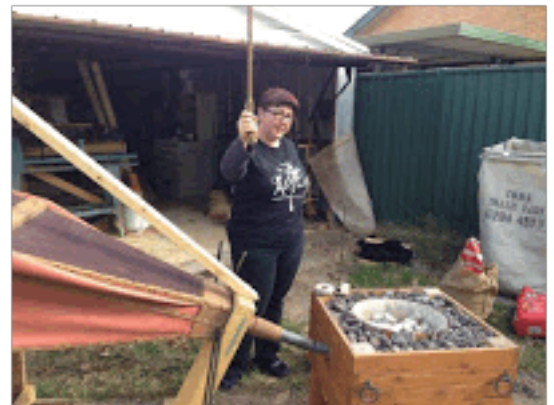

These paver also had different striations and shattered differently. We broke these into manageable pieces and filled two crucibles with them (Hulk, smash!).

We then used the furnace to bake the limestone. Firstly lighting the fire in the furnace from char cloth!

Unfortunately the provider of the furnace (Master Owen) was a little over zealous with the time taken to heat up the crucibles and they both cracked. Which you can see in the pictures.

We also tested the limestone at several points to see if it began to fizzle (a sign that it has been at temperature long enough).

This doesn't seem to have worked, mostly we believe, because it was possibly reconstituted limestone and may have had other additives, which inhibited the process.

Breaking up the pavers - Starting the furnace - getting the pavers hot

Crucibles heating up - testing for quicklime

Attempt 2: Next attempt will be sea shells.

This time we used sea shells from shell grit for birds (which is tiny, tiny shells and almost sand like).

We heated the shells red hot for about 5 minutes using a gas torch. This seems to have worked, creating a small amount of quicklime.

Shell grit - heating shell grit with the gas torch - quicklime!

Final Product:

We made the quicklime in the evening and let it soak overnight to create a lime water. We then used this lime water, mixed with the cheese, to make a glue solution.

Making the lime water - asiago mix - quark mix

Bits of wood stuck together - samples for display/final entry

Final Entry

Notes:

We tried two sets of quicklime with only one working. I will know better for next time what to look for in regards to colour changes (red hot and white hot) as well as products to use. Don't use pavers!

The asiago was a complete fail. The intent of the recipe is to use the glue straight away and this cheese (and probably any hard cheese) will take too much time to soften sufficiently in the implied timeframe.

Quark makes pretty awesome looking glue. Not sure of its effectiveness as yet, but good start. It has the consistency of Aquahere, which is good.

It was very fun to have tried the furnace approach and starting it from char cloth and steel.

• Don't eat the paste •

ADDITIONAL NOTES AFTER THE FACT:

The glue held really well. I needed a hammer to separate the two bits of wood I had glued together.

AN INCIDENT ON MULL

As told by Gordon Kyndeloch

An Incident happened between the MacLeans of Duart and the MacKinnon's of Tombermory on the Isle of Mull. The MacLeans, were anxious to seize MacKinnon's lands in Mishnish, a fertile section of flat high ground used for fattening the cattle in the summer. But they did not want open warfare between the clans so they waited for the opportunity to come that would allow them to seize the lands without bloodshed. When Lachlan, the clan Chief of the MacKinnon's passed away while his young son, Eowin was away on the mainland, they saw the opportunity to take the land and cattle.

Taking advantage of the young chief's absence from the Island, the MacLeans attacked so quickly, that the MacKinnon's had no warning and were scattered. The second part of the plan was to capture the lad on his return to Mull and force him to sign over the land. To this end Duart lodged himself and his men in a house near the harbor.

The young MacKinnon, on hearing of this from one of his clansmen who had escaped by sea. He planned to go to Skye to raise his northern followers, but first he landed on Mull to see how matters stood. He found an old clans woman still living near the harbor. She had a reputation as a witch, which probably saved her banishment by the MacLeans. She told MacKinnon that Duart was lodged in a House near the harbor and that they were so assured in their security they did not post sentries at night.

MacKinnon collected as many of his followers as he could from his scattered clansmen, but he knew that an attack would only lead to the death of many as they were greatly outnumbered. Eowin, being a bright young man came up with a plan, he sent every man to cut and trim a fir caber. The chief chose a fir with all the branches on and the clansmen quietly surrounded the House, they all stuck the cabers in the ground and blocked all the exits. MacKinnon's untrimmed fir was planted outside the front entrance. Eowin hung sword on the limbs and he stuck his naked dirk into the door. Then he had the clan withdraw. On the next morning, Duart realized what had happened and how he and his men had been at the mercy of the MacKinnon and his followers.

Respecting the lad for his chivalrous behavior and for his life that MacKinnon could so easily have taken, the MacLean returned all the cattle and the lands to the young chief. From that day forward, the plant badge of the MacKinnon's was the Scotch Pine.
